How far can mutuals and social enterprises go in tackling some of the challenges facing health and social care services?

Employee Mutuals, co-operatives and social enterprises are quickly emerging as some of the most likely and largest scale changes to take place in public service provision.

This conference will look to the practical issues which need to be addressed, not just by those forming mutuals or social enterprises, but those giving out the contracts. How will a new generation of health and social care staff create mutuals and social enterprises to give them more autonomy and control over their work, drive innovation and mobilise new resources?

This area of public services has already moved far in terms of personalisation and has some of the widest possibilities for new revenue streams and co-payments. This programme will set out the range of options and routes to change for staff, managers and commissioners.
